Non-Partisan League Candidates Endorsed

Six of ten candidates for civic offices are shown after being endorsed by the Victoria Civic Non-Partisan League last night. Left to right are Ald. William Pinfold, Ald. Percy Scurrah, mayoralty candidate Aubrey Kent being congratulated by Ald. Waldo Skillings, William J. Hamilton, for police commission, and J. E.

Neely, one-year aldermanic term. Also approved are Ald. Mrs. Margaret Christie, school board candidate Ken Leeming and Trustee A. W. Trevett, and J. Donald Smith, running for the other two-year aldermanic seat. (Colonist photo by Jim Ryan).

Non-Partisans Support Aubrey Kent

By RAY BAINES

The Victoria Civic Non-Partisan League last night placed its stamp of approval on mayoralty candidate Aubrey Kent and nine other aspirants for civic offices.

For two-year council terms, the league will support Ald. William Pinfold, Ald. Percy Scurrah, Ald. Waldo Skillings and Ald. Mrs. Margaret Christie. For the two one-year terms, retiring police commissioner J. E. Neely and newcomer J. Donald Smith were backed.

Nominated by the league executive committee, William J. Hamilton was unanimously endorsed for police commissioner and Ken Leeming and A. W. Trevett for Victoria representatives on the school board.

Mr. Trevett had not previously announced his intention of seeking re-election to the school board.

HUNTER SECOND

Runner up in the mayoralty race was retired alderman Dr. J. D. Hunter, who received 26 of the 65 votes cast. Third was C. L.

Harrison, who received four votes when Mr. Murdoch was nominated by M. L. Lockheed.

Chairman Walter Walker asked Mr. Lockheed if his nominee was willing to accept the support of the league.

"I really don't know," answered Mr. Lockhead. H. K. Bate was asked to phone Mr. Murdoch and ask him if he was willing to accept the support.

Mr. Murdoch's reply was that he was, but he wanted it known that he was in favor of Mr. Hart.

John Hart in Rush For B.C. Oil Land

FORMER premier John Hart yesterday got into the "rush for potential oil land in northeastern B.C."

He applied for an exploration permit covering 20,000 acres at Kyle Creek, near Fort Nelson.

The agreement was part of the deal by which the United States and the Soviet Union established diplomatic relations. Each country agreed not to interfere in domestic affairs of the other.

The Russian note charged the Security Act adopted by the last U.S. Congress provided funds for subversive activity against the Soviet Union and other Communist countries.

In a brief letter to Secretary-General Trygve Lie, Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky advised the U.N. Assembly Russia would press the charge. This shattered the faint hopes held by many delegates that the Russians might pursue a calmer course at this assembly.

The Russian move came just a day after the Soviet press published a note Russia handed to the United States in Moscow.

Census Shows 60,000 Jump

Population of Vancouver Island has jumped more than 60,000 in the last 10 years, according to a preliminary report on the decennial census made public at Ottawa yesterday.

The report showed that Vancouver Island now has 213,013 inhabitants, compared with 150,407 in 1941.

The Bureau of Statistics said the new population total is expected to revision to include persons not reached when the first census returns were closed. Final figures are to be announced later.

Public Avoids Big Debenture

LONDON, Nov. 22 (Reuters)—A big debenture issue today by the great £150,000,000 Lever Brothers soap combine proved one of the worst failures on record, it was learned tonight.

The public is understood to have subscribed for only 8 per cent of the £150,000,000 offered, leaving 92 per cent with the underwriters.

Dealers stated that dealings in the new debentures will start tomorrow at five to three discount—equivalent of a price of 91 to 93 for the new stock against the issue price of 96.

They had laid charges ready to blow up the dikes at several points to allow the flood waters to spill away into the sea.

By tonight the people of the eight villages had already joined the wretched mass of 200,000 driven from their homes.

Choked canals overflowed near Rovigo, alarming the remaining residents of this centre of the Po delta. Thousands have left the town in the last week.

Fog blanketing the disaster zone kept rescue planes and helicopters grounded but hundreds of boats criss-crossed the wilderness in search of people marooned on roof tops and carrying food to shivering, starving groups isolated on dikes or clumps of high ground.

Other progress was reported in the sessions of the conference attended by the United States, Canada and Japan. It seems to set up an agreement on North Pacific fishing rights.

M. P. Suggests Balance of U.K. Loan Be Used to Raise Immigrant Allotment

OTTAWA, Nov. 22 (CP)—A

C.C.F. member suggested in the Commons today that part of the $229,800,000 balance on a 1942

Canadian loan to Britain be used to help British immigrants settle in Canada.

Percy Wright (C.C.F. Melville) urged that advances be made from the fund to enable Britons, now tightly restricted in the amount they can take out of the United Kingdom, to get established on farms or in small businesses.

Mr. Wright, speaking as the House gave final reading to a bill to allow the loan to go interest-free until Jan. 1, 1954, said the amounts Britons can take out of the country now are not enough to finance small plants or shops.

Quite often, he said, a British settler will settle elsewhere, likely in Australia, because he can get a better deal on the money he can take with him.

Besides passing the British loan bill, the House gave final reading to bills which:

1. Authorized banks to operate only five days a week.

2. Implemented an international treaty for the regulation of the whaling industry. Parliament already had formally ratified the treaty.

3. Overhauled federal legislation on surveying.

4. Gave the Toronto Harbor Commission power to derive revenue from oil pipelines using its property.

In addition, the House considered a big government bill consolidating and revising the statutes governing federal financial administration. This got first reading after the House adopted a resolution preliminary to the measure.

It is light now and Chinese troops that swarmed into the Canadian positions have withdrawn. Bren magazines, emptied during savage in-fighting in the hours of darkness, must be reloaded, ready for the next attack. The face of Pte. Bob McPherson, Toronto, reflects the strain and tension of infantry combat in Korea. (National Defense photo.)

P.C.'s Make Election Sweep As Ontario Supports Frost

Liberals New Opposition; C.C.F. All But Wiped Out

TORONTO, Nov. 22 (CP)—The Progressive Conservative Party today rolled up the most sweeping election victory in Ontario's recent history.

A tidal wave of votes of near record proportions returned the Frost administration, all but wiped out the Socialist C.C.F. as an opposition party in the legislature, and elevated a reduced Liberal representation to the status of official opposition.

The final standing:

Canadian Press Party Standing	1951 Election	1948 Election
P.C.	79	53
Lib.	7	13
C.C.F.	2	21
Lab. Prog.	1	2
Lib. Lab.	1	1
Total	90	90

As vote-counting neared an end, 1,626,436 votes had been tabulated. This compared with the record 1,765,793 cast in the 1945 election.

The Progressive Conservative victory was scored with 49 per cent of the vote, the highest percentage since the Liberal party swept the 1937 election with 51 per cent of the vote.

In re-electing the Progressive Conservative government, Ontario voters administered to the C.C.F. the sharpest reverse since 1945 when eight members were returned. The party had won 34 seats in 1945.

Walter C. Thompson, Liberal party leader, ran a poor third in Ontario riding where four candidates sought office. He lost to T. D. Thomas who won for the C.C.F. one of its two seats. The party had 21 in the last legislature.

The Progressive Conservatives gained 18 seats from the C.C.F., whose leader, E. B. Jolliffe, was defeated in York South. Eleven of them were in Toronto-area ridings where the C.C.F. had been expected to make a strong showing. One of the last seats was that of Agnes Macphail in York East.

Premier Frost carried his entire 18-man cabinet back into office with him. He was leading an election battle for the first time, having taken over as party leader when George Drew entered the federal field.

In a broadcast, he expressed his thanks to the people of Ontario.

Mr. Thomson said:

"We're the opposition and I'm still leader of the Liberal party. Hart is our leader in the house. I'm still smiling, but there will be another day."

Mr. Jolliffe expressed disappointment at the number of persons who had voted for the C.C.F. in the last election.

The hole is not far from P.R.A. Fort St. John No. 1 which struck BC's first oil November 1. Testing at the No. 1 well is still in early stages.

De T. B. Williams, B.C. oil and gas commissioner, said the finding of gas does not necessarily mean that the wildcat will hit oil.

But, he said, it is a good indication that there is oil nearby.

The No. 2 hole is now down to 4,032 feet. The No. 1 well went down to 5,655 feet before hitting oil.

In a broadcast, he expressed his thanks to the people of Ontario.

Mr. Thomson said:

"We're the opposition and I'm still leader of the Liberal party. Hart is our leader in the house. I'm still smiling, but there will be another day."

Mr. Jolliffe expressed disappointment at the number of persons who had voted for the C.C.F. in the last election.

The strike in the mounting battle for air superiority over shadowed ground fighting. Up to 6,000 Chinese Reds were killed and lost an advanced Allied position on the west-central front. Action generally tapered off as snow fell.

The big bombers plastered the 7,000-foot runway of Uta air field with 300-pound bombs and 500-pound airbursting bombs which hurt jagged chunks of steel at planes hidden in rearmen. Allied spotter planes had reported a massive fire at the airfield.

Steen said that racing sheets and racing information were distributed or sold in the three daily newspapers, the hotels and the cigar stores.

Steen, the second Crown-wit ness, told of an interview with Maxine White, one of the accused, and herself by the Crown as the operator here of a racing wire service and publisher of the "Scratch Sheet."

He said he learned from White that the wire service was "purchased" for $100 a day from George O'Malley, head of the Far West News in Seattle, that part of this information was sold to the newspapers for $60 a month.

"Then why aren't the newspapers included as conspirators?" asked Sen. Farris.

Detective Steen said he "didn't know why."

Cool-Headed Ocean Diver Directs His Own Rescue

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 22 (AP)—A cool-headed deep-sea diver, trapped for five hours in chill waters near the Golden Gate, directed his own rescue tonight.

Two coast guard cutters stood by as William Wood, 48, of Santa Barbara, Calif., worked two ordinary auto jacks to lift iron bars that pinned him to the wreckage of a sunken hulk.

Although rushed unconscious to a decompression chamber for treatment against the dreaded "bends," he was found to be suffering only from shock and exposure, doctors said.

Wood told reporters he had started salvage operations before he came to, because he thought he might net "some money for Christmas" for his wife and two daughters.

Wood, a veteran diver, was working from off the deck of a salvage vessel, the "Salvager" of Santa Barbara, about 4 miles offshore.

He struggled more than an hour before telephoning his crew to help. It was almost two hours before the "Salvager" was spotted flying a distress signal.

The American flag upside down.

Wood phoned directions to his men after the coast guard brought the jacks. Once the bars were dislodged, but he was caught by another piece of debris.

Egypt, Iran Tighten Bonds

CAIRO, Egypt, Nov. 22 (Reuter)

The Prime Ministers of Egypt and Iran tonight announced a joint statement that negotiations will start soon for strengthening relations between their two countries.

The treaty of friendship and commerce of 1928 will be expanded, the statement said.

It said the treaty would serve as the basis of "multilateral agreements on a wider scope as to include Arab, near and middle eastern countries which were linked to Egypt and Persia by friendly ties."

Prime Ministers Mustafa of Nahas Pasha of Egypt and Mohammad Mossadegh of Iran pledged their countries' adherence to the principles of international law and the United Nations Charter.

ALLABOARD

By G. E. Mortimore

Much nonsense is talked about "outside interference." Let a prairie man come to Victoria and suggest the town could be changed for the better, and die-hards cry "Ah, go on back to the stubble. We like to keep things as they are."

Let a political group from another province part in a B.C. election campaign, and partisan interests shout "Foul." Let a man from another country suggest quite mildly that some Canadian laws and folkways could be improved, and pin-head patriots demand that the alien be deported.

Is an idea any less sound because it happens to come from a non-resident? Mature people judge an idea on its own merits, not on its national or regional origin.

But the cry of "Asia for Asiatics," "Canada for Canadians" or "Victoria for Victorians" is an effective weapon, because it plays on blind prejudice. It is therefore more powerful than any appeal to reason.

C.C.F. and Social Credit politicians have been criticized by Coalition supporters for traveling to B.C. to speak in favor of allied candidates.

Are Alberta and Saskatchewan foreign countries? I thought they were part of Canada. If so, Canadian citizens (and others, too, for that matter) have a perfect right to cross provincial boundaries and speak on any topic they choose, whether they are members of a provincial government or not.

Provinces are not sovereign states. They have no ambassadors or border guards. Perhaps it is bad manners for a member of the government of one province to invade another. Since when, however, have good manners been a feature of political campaigning?

If a member of a Liberal or Conservative government came here from another province and spoke in an election campaign, I doubt if the question of manners would be raised at all.

Governments in office have the advantage of being able to point to their past record—although for some governments this is a very doubtful advantage indeed. But a young party campaigning in a province where it has never held office labors under a handicap. Why shouldn't it be allowed to bring in witnesses of the same party who have a record of successful administration in another province?

Governments in office like to say: "Choose experienced leaders like us, not advocates of untried theories, like our opponents."

However, it is hard for them to use this war-cry when their opponents actually represent a party which has governed successfully in another province. And when the opponents can produce political leaders from that other province, the government is more embarrassed still. One can scarcely blame its apologists for seizing any weapon that is handy to beat the invaders off.

Nearly all economists consider the theory of Social Credit unsound. The federal system makes many of its original aims impossible to achieve. But the government of Alberta has thrown many of those theories and aims out the window and contented itself with good administration. It seems to have the people's support.

I do not argue in favor of Social Credit or of the C.C.F., which also seems to have done reasonably well in Saskatchewan. I haven't the knowledge to pass judgment. But I suggest that the proper way for the old-line parties to fend off the newcomers is to show that they can themselves do a better job.

Progressive Conservative Sweep

PREMIER LESLIE FROST'S Progressive Conservative administration was returned in the Ontario general election yesterday with decidedly increased emphasis. The Premier and his cabinet won re-election, while Progressive Conservatives picked up a number of additional seats from former Liberal and C.C.F. ridings. The Liberal leader, Walter C. Thomson, met personal defeat; while his party picked up some seats from a weakened C.C.F. which had formed the official opposition in the Twenty-Third Legislature. Progressive Conservatives were assured of election and overwhelming support in the Twenty-Fourth Legislature two hours after the polls closed. At the same hour Liberal and C.C.F. standing seemed to have been reversed, although their probable tallies were not clear. The Labor Progressive (Communist) Party retained one seat.

No Mere Incident

BECAUSE Canadian forces in Korea are not large in number when set against the total U.N. effort Canadian casualties in that theatre have been comparatively few. This is a circumstance for which to be thankful but not one that should induce complacency or any feeling that the Korean campaign is a mere incident. It is far from that. For the men engaged it is all-out war, as deadly to the combatants as any such conflict and in cold fact one of the most destructive in history.

Figures released at Washington concerning American field participation should remove any lingering doubts about the nature and the severity of the Korean fighting. United States casualties have now passed the 100,000 mark, quiet testimony in itself that forces from across the line are bearing the brunt of the U.N. effort apart

The Ontario campaign had been fought on general lines, the Progressive Conservatives pledging sound governance, support of the St. Lawrence Seaway, hydro development and provincial autonomy. Liberals under Walter Thomson had campaigned for hospital care and other changes. The C.C.F. offered its usual program of socialist fare, with a general attack on the administration in power. E. B. Jolliffe, C.C.F. leader, went down to defeat in York South.

While final results in the general election may not be completed in respect of outlying polling divisions until later, a Progressive Conservative sweep was apparent last evening shortly after the polls had closed. The heavy increase in Premier Frost's support, and a probable reversion of the official opposition to the Liberals, held outstanding interest in the test.

"And now, if the last boy to leave school yesterday, November the Fifth, will kindly step forward . . ."

Thinking Aloud

... of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

IONS, real or imaginary, are no laughing matter, says the London Times. Albert found this out, as you remember, and another small boy had the kind of close-up that haunts the dreams of naughty children. He was buying biscuits at a Dublin counter when a lioness appeared suddenly at his elbow, but unlike Albert he refrained from offering it a bite either of a biscuit or himself, resolutely placing his person behind a chair until the zoo keeper arrived to escort Leo's better half home again.

Whether the little Dublin lad laughed or not the story doesn't say, but I know that two weeks ago in Seattle when I locked eyes with a large specimen of the lion tribe lying only three feet away, no grin lit up my features. I have been fairly close to the odd lion in my day but always there were strong iron bars between us and this time there was only—a sheet of glass. Presumably it is bullet-proof, shatter-proof and lion-proof, but I found myself wondering what would happen if the king of beasts were to rise, shake an angry mane, and launch his four or five hundredweight straight in my direction.

He didn't like me or my gaze, that much was obvious, for he opened his mouth and snarled nastily, whereupon I assumed an air of casualness but nevertheless moved quickly along to the next cage. A moment afterwards I heard muffled cries, and turning to look back beheld two young girls shrinking away from the window. Leo didn't like them either but they were honest, they squealed their fears.

In the second cage, lying prone against his pane-of-glass, was a Bengal tiger, a beautiful animal if ever there was one. I exchanged glances with this huge cat too, but all I received in return was an indifferent and bored stare, as was my desert. Did I not belong to the so-called superior genus that finds pleasure in condemning animals to solitary confinement for life?

The lion I had always thought to be the largest of the cat family, but a card in the window handed this distinction to the striped creature that was ignoring me. Reading it I learned that a full-grown lion might weigh 300 lbs, but that a Bengal tiger in the plenitude of his powers would outweigh his rival by 100 lbs. That information, allied to the glass curtain, persuaded me I should leave Bengal in peace, so I departed for a look at lesser animals—panthers, leopards, and the like.

These cages, by the way, were the cleanest I ever set eyes on. The floors and walls were of tile, and you could have eaten off them without swallowing a speck of any untoward matter whatsoever. Either the zoo attendants are in and out of the cages every half-hour or the animals are much more fastidious about hygiene than I have hitherto imagined.

The cages themselves lead to outside compounds which give each animal, separately of course, a certain amount of stretching space over carefully-built rock and scrub formations. Round about the entire structure is a low wall which drops into a dry moat or pit, from which the rocks stretch upwards and backwards. I must suppose the distances have been meticulously measured and the known leaping powers of lions and tigers prudently taken into consideration, but it seemed to me that a Bengal tiger roared to the proper pitch of athletic enthusiasm might reach the parapet with one tremendous bound.

Since both Leo and the Bengal were, as I knew, in their warm cages this notion didn't disconcert me so much as it might in midsummer, so I could afford to linger and admire the empty moat. Not without a certain thought, however. "The only lion to be laughed at," adds the London Times, "is behind bars—and even then his dignity in captivity forbids it."

Leo then, I reflected as I strolled slowly out of the park, was showing me his teeth in contempt when I gawked at him in the fashion common to my species.

Britain's New Economic Measures

By JOHN KINGSLY, From London

INTERNAL reactions to the policies for dealing with Britain's current economic problems announced by the chancellor of the exchequer are that the proposed steps, though drastic, are very necessary and are capable of achievement.

Broadly, the methods are the same as those used to cope with previous postwar difficulties. Imports are to be cut to essentials only, exports are to be stimulated, capital expenditure is to be curtailed, production and productivity are to be stepped up, and attempts will be made to cut public and private spending. The new postwar factor introduced is the old and well-tried instrument of raising the Bank of England discount rate in order to restrict credit.

The main factors which have brought about the present serious situation are the widening gap in overseas trade, both overall and dollar, and the inflation which is hitting the world. The first, as new and grave facts show, is the more formidable. Based on recent trends and import programs, Britain's total overseas deficit in 1952 might be of the order of £500,000,000 or £600,000,000.

Excluding unpredictable speculative movements, the loss of gold and dollar reserves, which serve the whole sterling area, would be even worse. A deficit of £228,000,000 in the third quarter of this year was followed by a reduction of £114,000,000 in the single month of October, reducing the balance to under £1,100,000,000. In addition, the deficit with the European Payments Union had risen in October.

The causes of these sudden changes were to some extent out of British control. External factors have placed new and heavy loads on the balance of payments. The rate of increase in British export prices has lagged far behind a steep rise in import prices. The loss of the Abadan refinery has meant extra dollar payments for oil. The development of the £4,700,000,000 three-year defense program has increased overseas expenditure. Added up, the extra import bill is of the order of £600,000,000 a year compared with 1950. In addition, Britain as "banker" for the sterling area has had to take much of the strain in meeting the dollar and Western European deficits of other members. It has not been possible to expand the already busy internal productive capacity by a sufficient amount to take care of the need for greater exports and the requirements of defense.

External and internal measures are to be taken to deal with the situation. Although company dividends are not to be restricted by law, directors have been asked to exercise restraint when making decisions. An excess profits tax will be imposed next year but details will not be known for some time.

Discussions with other countries are amongst other important steps. Plans are well in hand for a meeting in London of Commonwealth finance ministers early in the new year. This should facilitate the preparation of common economic policies. Other discussions will take place soon with Britain's partners in N.A.T.O. and O.E.E.C.

British determination to overcome present problems was summed up by the chancellor of the exchequer when he said: "If any further action over the whole field is required, in order to establish our position and maintain the strength of sterling as an international currency, we shall not hesitate to take it. Let no one doubt our intention to make and keep sterling strong."

The Pack-sack

By GREGORY CLARK

IN observing one another's behavior these days, it is kindly of us to remember that no generation since the dawn of time has been so subjected as ours to arts and crafts of the drama. Movies, radio, television and the lavishly illustrated popular magazines are not merely squeezing the stuffings out of every conceivable dramatic situation of life, but they are being served up so liberally that hardly a human being is left in the land who is not subjected to a sense of drama. Only a generation ago you had to read books for it. The theatre offered it to a very limited clientele.

Therefore, if you detect amongst your family and friends an inclination to dramatize themselves, you must admit that it is only natural. Real life was always duller than the novels, even in grandpa's day. That's why novels were popular. Real life is enormously duller than the movie, radio and television dramas that are everyday fare for the mass of mankind today, and if you think for a minute that all those crowds sitting in the dark of movie houses all over the country aren't doing a little quiet itching, then you have a poor impression of the human imagination. If all the millions who sit brooding in their humdrum living-rooms whilst love, hate, blood and thunder boom from their radios are unaffected by it, then indeed we are cloots.

It could be that the unrest and disturbance of the world today might be in some measure the result of this infusion, this saturation of our generation with drama. The deep inner disturbance of nations has always resulted in disturbances up on the top level of rule and of government. If this generation's disturbance comes of a desire for drama, we are certainly getting it up at the top.

We may confidently say, then, that peace and quiet will descend upon the earth when nobody goes to the movies any more, nobody listens to radio or looks at television, and when everybody stops reading the floridly illustrated popular magazines.

And a Firm Hand

(From The Edmonton Journal)

ONCE upon a time, we are told, raising children was a fairly straightforward business. Today, "experts" pour out "scientific" advice from every quarter, and mothers who listen too closely to the chorus often find it pretty bewildering.

An American child specialist, perhaps to the surprise of some of his colleagues, doesn't think too much of this chorus of advice. He is Dr. Herman Little of the school of medicine at the University of Buffalo. Quoth he:

"Up to 1950, mothers were doing a pretty good job of raising their children. We knocked the stuffing out of them and they began to feel one had to be a scientist to raise a child."

As a result, he believes, many mothers have lost confidence in their handling of their children, regardless of how they do it. This loss of confidence Dr. Little considers very bad for both children and mothers.

Many people—and not merely those who raised young ones before 1950—will feel that there is far more truth than fiction in what the good doctor says. Along with some of the experts, they favor a fairly simple formula made up of love, faith, a good example, common sense, and a firm hand. They may be a little old-fashioned, but they could be right at that.

Anything very valuable is referred to as "worth a king's ransom," without stating just how much that is. As far as we are concerned, it would depend on which king.

Man's inhumanity to man while in pursuit of a three-inch hockey puck makes countless thousands cheer.

An expert says the atomic bomb now can be "tailored to order." And we suppose the dressy spy will want a flat one so as not to spoil the drape of the dinner jacket.

Non-Partisans Support Aubrey Kent for Mayor

Mr. Walker said he felt that his members could express their feelings when they voted.

"We are looking for the best men we can get," said J. Howard Harman. "What policies he supports are none of our business."

Another member suggested that if it was the will of the meeting to support Mr. Murdoch then the league would "support him."

Mr. Walker called it a "peculiar situation" but ruled that Mr. Murdoch's nomination be accepted.

When Mr. Harrison was nominated from the floor by Mr. Lockwood, he also was phoned to ask him if he would accept league support. The city's prosecutor said he would.

In seconding the nomination, Dr. Ivan V. Hancock called Mr. Harrison "the only candidate who has a definite policy."

His statement was greeted with cries of "Hooray!"

Mr. Kent addressed the meeting and called the league's action "very gratifying."

"It confirms my conviction that my term of office as one of

Consumers Favor Color In Margarine

At a protest meeting in City Hall last night members of the Canadian Association of Consumers approved the coloring of margarine by manufacturers and drafted a letter to Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent and Fisheries Minister R. W. Mayhew urging that they uphold the ban against resale price maintenance.

The letter, which will be sent to Ottawa by the group and also by individual members, says in part: "The Victoria branch of the Canadian Association of Consumers is deeply annoyed by the government's change of attitude on the question of banning resale price maintenance."

Irish School Gets Paper

On the way to a County Down, Ireland, school is a copy of The Daily Colonist which recorded the visit here of Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh.

It was sent in answer to a request from pupils of County Intermediate School, Bangor, County Down, Northern Ireland.

Signed by spokesman Valerie McLarion, the letter explained that because of the newspaper shortage, the newspapers there carried "very little" of the Royal tour of Canada.

Apparently the Irish boys and girls are making up a record of the tour and want as much information as possible.

Women, Mayors Have Little Luck As Candidates in Ontario Election

TORONTO, Nov. 22 (CP)—The only woman member of the last Ontario legislature and six other women who contested seats in today's Ontario general election all were defeated.

"I am obliged to no one member of the Canadian House of Commons and only one of the one-year candidates would not be running against one another," members agreed.

Vice-president George Wilkinson urged the members to support the league slate.

"We can't afford to have a division. We can't tell people what to do, but we urge your support on behalf of good civic government," he said.

The meeting voted to support Mr. Neely in his bid for Mr. Kent's unexpired term and Mr. Smith for that of Dr. Hunter. This would insure that the two one-year candidates would not be running against one another.

VANCOUVER, Nov. 22 (CP) — A new issue of common stock will be offered by the B.C. Electric Co. if it wins its case for an increase in allowed profits.

Science Shows God Exists, Pontiff States

VATICAN CITY, Nov. 22 (UPI) — The Pope reasoned today that through scientific investigation of the age of the earth, scientists have unearthed proof of the existence of God.

He accepted science's "well-founded deduction" that the world began about 75,000,000 years ago.

The Pontiff reaffirmed Catholic tenets of creation in a speech to an international gathering of scientists here to discuss the mysteries of tiny earthquake waves which ripple constantly through the globe.

The Pope said modern science has "confirmed with the concreteness of physical proofs the contingency of the universe and the well-founded deductions that toward that time the cosmos issued from the hand of the Creator."

"Creation in time, therefore, implies a creator — and so God," the Pope declared.

"This is the voice which, although not explicit nor complete, we (the Church) asked of science and which the present generation expects of it."

Nominations for other positions are: Emerson Smith and Colin H. Wells, first vice-president; Mrs. A. C. Ross and Mrs. J. Smith, second vice-president; R. J. Garner and Mrs. Blair Read, treasurer.

Nationalists Execute General as Red Spy

TAIPEH, Formosa, Nov. 22 (AP)—Chinese Nationalists today executed Major Gen. Sun Ta-Wen of the defense ministry on charges of being a Communist spy.

The defense ministry said Sun came to Formosa ostensibly as a loyal Nationalist, but later was found to be a Communist agent. The 85-year-old general, formerly commanded the Chinese Nationalist 33rd Army under Gen. Fan Tsu-Yi, Nationalist commander in North China who switched his army over to the Reds.

Under cross-examination at the afternoon session, B.C. Electric research director Harold Purdy agreed that "a substantial amount" of the funds, which the company would obtain with the increase would go into a common stock equity.

Dr. Purdy opened the company's case to have the rate of return allowed by the Public Utilities Commission. He said the value of its property increased from 5.8 to 7.5 per cent.

In an exhaustive, analytical brief, he outlined the company's capital requirements over the next five years, examined the company's financial situation and its scope for issuing bonds and shares, and especially noted the importance of institutional investors, especially insurance companies.

He submitted several documents as evidence to support his case. One showed a 39-cent decline in consumer dollar purchasing power from $1 in 1939 to 61 cents last year.

Another outlined the company's estimated capital expenditures during the next five years, totaling $132,400,131. To pay back interest and dividends obtain that amount, the company to stockholders, as well as inflate states, it must convince the company's financial reserve which can be further invested in a good financial risk.

Former corporation counsel D. E. McTaggart submitted Dr. Purdy to a grueling cross-examination on behalf of the City of Vancouver, which is providing the main opposition to the increase.

McMORRAN QUERIES

After establishing that the company was not now earning the present rate of return—the maximum amount which the company is allowed to earn over and above its operating expenses

McMorrin asked:

"Why are you asking for an increase when you are not at the moment in a position to make use of it?"

The investor, especially the investor in common stock, places more weight on the prospects of the potential investment," Dr. Purdy replied. "He looks closely at the potential maximum return he can expect from his investment."

He said a fair rate of return should allow sufficient funds to be paid back interest and dividends

Drivers Fined in Saanich

Traffic fines against motorists totaled $360 in Saanich police court yesterday. Kartar Singh, 61, 3257 Tennyson, was fined $50 for dangerous driving and had his driver's license suspended for three months except for business purposes.

Gordon H. Ross, 625 Lampson, who faced a similar charge, was also fined $50 and suspended from driving except for business purposes for three months.

A fine of $40 was imposed by Magistrate H. C. Hall against H. R. Massey, 901 Easter, for dangerous driving.

California winegrowers so far have been unsuccessful in their attempts to put their wines on B.C. liquor store shelves.

The new offer would remove one big objection: that competition from U.S. wines would be too stiff for B.C. growers.

Technically, he said, Petri could not sell directly to the B.C. wineries. The wines would have to be bought by the B.C. Liquor Board, which would then resell them to the local wineries. The wineries would bottle the wines and put their own labels on them, then sell them back to the liquor board for retail sale.

In practice, tank-car lots of wine could be shipped in bond directly to the B.C. wineries for bottling.

Mr. Nelles said prices of California wines might be about the same as those of B.C. wines.

He said the price would have to be set by the liquor board, but he thought Petri table wines and sherries could be sold here for less than $1 a bottle. Vermouths would be a little more expensive, and champagnes higher still.

The St. Laurent will be the first of 14 destroyer escorts now on order with Canadian shipyards.

Money Raised For Parcels

More than $150 was realized for overseas parcels as 600 people gathered at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church Wednesday night to view five color films on England, Scotland, Ireland and Paris.

Films were shown by Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Nimmie, who recently returned from an extended British Isles trip.

Korean Children in Desperate Need, Veteran Tells Optimists "Old at 40, 50, 60?"*— Man, You're Crazy

Canadian troops in Korea have done a good job. Pte. Larry Orehin, who recently returned from the battle front, told members of the Victoria Optimist Club physically ruined, and that women and children are undergoing "terrible hardships."

"We have nothing to be ashamed of regarding our fighting men in Korea," he said. Pte. Orehin is believed to be the first Korean war veteran to address a service club in Victoria.

And he admitted it was his first public speech. He had the moral support of Pte. George Burnett, who did not speak.

Pte. Orehin said Korea was physically ruined, and that women and children are undergoing "terrible hardships."

"I see they are starting a drive for funds for Korean children," he said. "They are the ones that need it. They sure look a beating."

At the meeting it was announced that once more the word by the club

Optimist Club will operate a Christmas tree lot at 325 Cook short of power tools for the boys.

Proceeds from the venture will go toward buying equipment for sander, belt and disk and jig saw.

At the meeting it was another motors ranging in size up to one-half horsepower are needed.

Anyone wishing to donate such equipment is asked to phone

George Gordon at 2-2219 and it will be picked up.
